Delivery System Reform Incentive Payment Program (DSRIP) PSA: PART II

[Video transcript]

[00:00:04] Dr. Johnson loves being a doctor and sees some of the neediest patients in the community but feels that a 15-minute office visit and a prescription pad is not enough. Patients on Medicaid with chronic conditions like diabetes, heart disease, asthma, or addiction couldn't afford all the services they needed to keep their illness in check. The days felt like an endless revolving door of patients. Now, with the help of PPS partners and value based payment, Dr. Johnson has a DSRIP nurse in his office every day that can guide patients to resources and track their progress. Patients can see a social worker, mental health expert, smoking cessation counselor, dependency clinic, or whatever Dr. Johnson's team feels the patient needs to have a healthier, more productive life. DSRIP has changed the way Dr. Johnson runs the office. The doctor is able to keep on schedule while providing better, more consistent care to patients.

[00:00:56] Patients have responded well to the extra encouragement and monitoring. They keep their appointments now, they adhere to their medication schedule, and they take a more active role in their own well-being. Dr. Johnson loves being a doctor and DSRIP has shown Dr. Johnson and the staff a better, more effective way to provide long term health care to the neediest patients in the community.
